

tips for a healthy headspace

Good mental health and wellbeing allows you to live your life in a positive and meaningful way and cope with life's changes and challenges.

Keeping a healthy headspace

Good mental health is a state of wellbeing where you feel able to work and study, feel connected to others, be involved in activities in your community and 'bounce back' when life's changes and challenges come along.

How can I boost my mental health?

Our headspace clinicians offered their insights on some practical ways to improve your wellbeing every day.

Get enough sleep. Sleeping well is good for your brain and body, and helps you feel energised, stay focused and protect your mental health. See our sleep fact sheet for more information and advice.

Eat well. Eating well can improve your mood, energy levels and general health and wellbeing. Fill up on nutritious food (like veggies, fruit and whole grains) and drink plenty of water to give your body and brain all the power it needs to function well.

Get in to life. Keep doing the stuff you love to do and the things that are important to you. It can help keep the fun in your life, give you a sense of accomplishment and purpose, boost your confidence and help to connect with others.

Some of these things, such as skating, reading or playing the guitar, might just be for fun, but other things like work or study can give you new skills and might help to give you meaning.

Stay active. Staying active can help you to sleep better, manage stress and boost your mood.

Make time to take a break from study or work or hanging out, whether it be going to the gym, kicking a ball around with a mate or just going for a walk. Whatever it is, start small, and make sure it's something you enjoy.

Connect. Spending time with family, friends (including pets) and people in your community can help strengthen your mental health and wellbeing. You can try things like:

- volunteer work
- hobbies
- clubs or committees
- sports.

Just like physical fitness, mental fitness takes regular effort. But sometimes life can get in the way of improving your mental health. Here are some important things to know.

Learn new ways to handle tough times. Taking time to think about how you're handling tough times is really important. Sometimes the things we do naturally can help, and other times they don't.

Increase your options for handling tough times as they'll come in handy now and into the future. Some options to consider include:

- using art, music or journaling to express yourself
- spending time in nature
- setting some small goals, and getting help seeing them through
- talking kindly to yourself
- searching for websites and free apps that can help.

Cut back on alcohol and other drugs. Cutting down on the amount of alcohol and other drugs that you take, or avoiding alcohol and other drugs altogether, will help you sleep better, feel better, and keep a healthy headspace.

Even though alcohol and other drugs may make you feel good in the very short term, they can impact your mental health and make you feel much worse in the long run.

How can I get help?

"If a problem feels like it's too big to deal with by yourself it probably is. It's important to speak up and get support from friends and family."

If you feel like support from family and friends isn't enough, seek professional help. You can see your general practitioner (GP), make an appointment to chat to someone at your local headspace centre or visit eheadspace for online and phone support.

Remember, keeping a good mental health involves building your mental fitness, so you can stay on top of things and get the most out of each day.

If you or someone you know is going through a tough time you can get help and support from headspace, your school or university wellbeing service or your local health provider.
